Recorder Smyth charged the jury last evening, and they retired at 9.10 o'clock. They came into court two or three times for further instructions, and annoyed the Recorder very much by some of their questions. At 2 o'clock they had not agreed, and the Recorder ordered them locked up for the night and went home.

Early this morning crowds began to inder in the corridors of the browning Court-House. Rumors filled the that the jury had agreed, but no thority could be found for the story, ither Capt. Oakford nor Officers John ater. Charles Knight, Michael Quinn ir David Helferts, in charge of the ry, would violate the oath of secrecy ken in court.

The reporter had heard nothing, and in a minute Dr. Meyer was deeply engrossed in a morning paper.

A little later a court officer carried word to Recorder Smyth, who had arrived in Chief Clerk Carroll's office, that the jury was ready to report.

An "Evening World" reporter carried to Dr. Meyer the information that the jury had agreed.

"How do you know?" he demanded.

Meyer sighed and said: "Ah, well,

Dr Meyer's Crime.

Dr Meyer's Crime.

Many things happened to make the irial of Dr. Meyer one of the most sensational poisoning cases on record, surpassing even that of Carlyle W. Harris and Buchanan. Three times arrested for murder by poison, he was, when first placed on trial here in December, 1833, for poisoning Ludwig Brandt, wanted in various sections of the country for several offenses. The first trial ended abruptly, when towards the close one of the jurors became insane.

Dr. Meyer began the practice of medicine in Chicago in 1878, and continued it for eight or nine years. In 1899, he was confined in the Cook County Jall, where he met Ludwig Brandt, whom he had previously known. Carl Muller, Gustav Heinrich and Joseph Maria Baum, While in jail Meyer told the others of his scheme to swindle insurance companies.

Unfolding the Plot.

Unfolding the Plot.

When Muller got out of jail he hunted b Dr. Meyer, who had previously been leased, and then Meyer outlined the the state of the s

Mrs. Neyer's Marriage with Brandt.

Brandt had his life insured in August, 1381, and in February, 1892, he came to this city with Muller. They took apartments at 329 East Thirteenth street. Dr. and Mrs. Meyer came on from Chicago, and Meyer, in order to make everything secure, had his wife go through a marriage ctremony with Brandt, the latter soling under the name of Baum.

Brandt unsuspectingly allowed himself to be made ill and took the poison which Meyer prepared. At first he was given croton oil, to cause dysentery, but it acted too slowly. Then Dr. Meyer gave him antimony and afterwards arsente, which ultimately thing been done that Dr. Minden, who had been called in, gave a certificate of death.

The Plot Miscarried.

The Plot Miscarried.

The conspirators collected from two of the insurance companies, but the Mutual Life and the Aetna Company became suspicious. Brandt's body was exhumed, the poison discovered and detectives employed to trace up the crime. Mrs. Meyer was charged with being one of the chief conspirators.

Since the arrest sensation has followed sensation. Muller, on the witness stand, painted his own character in the darkest possible light. He admitted being a perjurer, and one of the sensations of the last trial was when his letter to Meyer's lawyers were read offering to help him if research from the House of Detention.

Again it was charged that Mrs. Meyer the charge was frivolous on its face, he said, and the application ought to be denied.

He then read Clerk Bremer's answer to the charge, in which he says he was informed on entering upon his duties a year ago that it was the custom of the clerk and assistant clerk of the court to take a vacation of two weeks at such times in the course of the year as would secure the presence of either the clerk or his assistant at all times when the court should be in session, or the clerk's office should be open.

In accordance with this custom he had informed Julius Harburger, the Chief Clerk, that he desired to be absent during the first week in May, and that it should be considered a part of his vacation. Permission was given to him by Clerk Harburger to go away.

Mr. Bremer further said he knew of no law that compelled him to get permission of the Justice or notify him of his intention to take a vacation. He also declared that he had faithfully performed all his duties as assistant clerk ever since he was appointed.

Presiding Justice O'Brien said the Court would take the papers and examine the facts presented, or if there was any doubt as to the facts, the matter would be sent to a referee. Justice Roesch asked for an extension of time till Monday to put in a brief, but this was denied. He was teld it must be submitted to-day, if st all.

Ex-Justice Steckler said to-day that this application was without precedent, and that if it was decided that Bremer could be removed on the grounds presented, every public officer in New York was liable to removal. Even Justice Roesch himself, who was away five or six weeks during the Winter on his samplication of the law, to say nothing of Mayor Gilroy, Alderman Divver and any other official who might take a yvacation.

The question at issue is upon the legality of alleged defective ballots. In one district of the Fourth Ward the coupon was not torn from a ballot for Edson Lewis, the Republican candidate. In another district of the Fourth Ward three Fiske ballots and one Lewis ballot were found in the box for the vote on school appropriation.

By throwing out these four ballots and counting the ballot with the coupon the Republican Aldermen gave Lewis a plurality of two. He was sworn in yesterday afternoon.
